Defendants.)

Before the court is a motion by Plaintiff (ECF No. 438) to be relieved from a judgment entered by this court on September 23, 2010 (ECF No. 347) in favor of Title Security Agency of Arizona ("TSA").

Within the times set forth by the rules, Plaintiff filed a motion seeking to be relieved of the judgment, citing FED. R. CIV. P. 59 and 60 (adopted as FED. R. BANKR. P. 9023 and 9024).

For the reasons noted below, the motion will be DENIED.

1 ruling, the court assumed that Plaintiff had simply abandoned its claims against TSA. The TSA 2 motion for summary judgment was persuasive on the merits, it was supported by facts and law and 3 it was granted on that basis. Because no response in opposition had been filed, it would have been 4 a waste of judicial time to expound at length on what the court had every right to believe was simply 5 conceded by the Plaintiff. When the court stated, at line 22, that TSA had supported its motion
6 appropriately, that resolved the merits question. In view of no opposition having been filed, one is 7 tempted to ask, "What else is there to say?"

8 The subject judgment (ECF No. 347) was entered on September 23, 2010 against 9 Plaintiff and in favor of TSA by dismissing Counts 49, 50, 53, 54, 56 and 57. After entry of 10 judgment, Plaintiff too late filed his untimely opposition to the motion for summary judgment on 11 September 30, 2010,¹ (ECF No. 414), statement of facts (ECF No. 415) and objections to the 12 evidence submitted by TSA (ECF No. 413).

13 Also after entry of judgment, Plaintiff filed his initial motion for relief from judgment
14 on October 5, 2010 (ECF No. 431) and his amended motion for relief from judgment on October 6, 15 2010 (ECF No. 438).

16 The court has not, and procedurally may not, consider the Plaintiff's post-judgment 17 response to the decided summary judgment, until and unless it first sets aside the judgment of 18 September 23, 2010 (ECF No. 347).

19 20 THE LAW

21 22 A. Rules 59 and 60

23
24 Plaintiff has moved under both FED. R. CIV. P. 59(e) (manifest error of fact or law, 25 incorporated by FED. R. BANKR. P. 9023) and FED. R. CIV. P. 60(b)(1) (excusable neglect, 26

27 ¹ TSA filed its reply (ECF No. 458), response to Lattig's statement of facts (ECF 28 No. 459) and response to Lattig's objections to evidence (ECF No. 460) on October 15, 2010.

1 incorporated by FED. R. BANKR. P. 9024,) in its motion for relief from the court's order granting 2 summary judgment.

3 The motion was made within 14 days of entry of judgment. A Rule 59(e) motion must 4 be made no later than 14 days after entry of the order or judgment, whereas a Rule 60(b)(1) motion
5 must be made "within a reasonable time" but not more than one year after judgment. See FED. R.
6 BANKR. P. 9023 and FED. R. CIV. P. 60(c). Either a Rule 59(e) or 60(b) motion that is filed no later
7 than 14 days after entry of the judgment will toll the time for filing an appeal. FED. R. BANKR. P.
8 8002(b).

9 Although either type of motion is proper, a Rule 60(b) motion may not be used as a 10 substitute for a timely appeal. In re Atkins, 134 B.R. 936, 939 (9th Cir. BAP 1992). Thus, a Rule 11 60(b) motion that is filed within 14 days of the judgment will be considered a Rule 59(e) motion to 12 alter or amend the judgment "where it involves 'reconsideration of matters properly encompassed 13 in a decision on the merits.'" In re Carolina Triangle Ltd. P'ship, 166 B.R. 411, 414 (9th Cir. BAP 14 1994) (quoting Osterneck v. Ernst & Whinney, 489 U.S. 169, 174)).

15 Here, Plaintiff moved under both Rules, but for different reasons. The Rule 59(e)
16 motion ascribes error to the court's ruling and also seeks to prevent an alleged manifest injustice,
17 whereas the Rule 60(b) motion pleads "excusable neglect" in order to allow the untimely response.
18 Plaintiff further moves the court to set aside the order granting summary judgment in favor of TSA,
19 and granting it an extension for its now-filed response.

20 Accordingly, a court faced with a Rule 60(b)(1) request must ordinarily conduct an 21 analysis under both Rules. See, e.g., In re Graves, 279 B.R. 266, 275 (9th Cir. BAP 2002) (a timely
22 post-judgment "Response" was properly treated as a Rule 59(e) motion, but the bankruptcy court 23 "should also have taken the default dimension into account and have construed [it] as a request for 24 relief from default and from default judgment" under Rule 60(b).) See also In re Bateman, 231 F.3d 25 1220, 1224 (9th Cir. 2000) (holding that the bankruptcy court abused its discretion by failing to 26 conduct the equitable analysis of "excusable neglect" in denying relief from entry of summary 27 judgment).

1 B. Rule 59(e)

2
3 A Rule 59(e) motion "should not be granted, absent highly unusual circumstances, 4 unless the [bankruptcy] court is presented with newly discovered evidence, committed clear error,
5 or if there is an intervening change in the controlling law." McDowell v. Calderon, 197 F.3d 1253, 6 1255 (9th Cir. 1999) (citation omitted).

7 First, Plaintiff maintains the court committed error by granting summary judgment
8 solely on the grounds that no responses had been timely filed. Such an adjudication would be 9 prohibited in the Ninth Circuit. Martinez v. Stanford, 323 F.3d 1178, 1182 (9th Cir. 2003); Marshall 10 v. Gates, 44 F.3d 722, 725 (9th Cir. 1995); Henry v. Gill Indus., Inc., 983 F.2d 943, 950 (9th Cir.
11 1993).

12 On this issue, however, the court agrees with TSA, who recognizes that this court did 13 not rule solely on that procedural basis, but on the lack of any evidence in the record sufficient to 14 raise a genuine issue of material fact, as well as on all of the facts and law contained within the 15 moving papers. FED. R. CIV. P. 56(e)(2) ("If the opposing party does not so respond, summary 16 judgment should, if appropriate, be entered against that party.") (emphasis added); see also School
17 Dist. No.1J Multnomah County, Or. v. ACandS, Inc., 5 F.3d 1255, 1261-62 (9th Cir. 1993) (failure 18 to comply with summary judgment rules resulted in lack of evidentiary support for opposing party's 19 argument). The court read and considered all of TSA's moving papers, as well as its authorities, and 20 concluded that, on the facts and law, TSA was entitled to judgment. It so noted by stating that TSA 21 had "supported that request by appropriate pleadings" (ECF No. 347, line 22). Since there had been 22 no debate, there was no valid reason to simply rehash all of TSA's facts, points, argument and 23 authorities. The court read everything, and ruled.

24 Second, Plaintiff maintains that granting summary judgment was a manifest injustice.
25 The parties had entered into a written agreement to extend Plaintiff's response deadlines, and 26 Plaintiff inadvertently failed to notify the court of this until September 23, 2010 when Plaintiff filed
27 a motion for an extension of time to file the responses (ECF. No. 338). The court had entered 28 judgment in the TSA matter the day before, on September 22, 2010, and entered judgment in the

1 Wright and Yonan matter and the Sullivan Counts 49, 50, 51, 53, 54, 55, 56 and 57 re: eCloser
2 matter on the same day, September 23, 2010.

3 Were this an isolated incident, the court might take a different view of it. However,
4 this case has been hotly litigated since the start, nearly two years ago, with neither side giving any 5 quarter. In view of that status, together with the court's admonition that it would begin ruling on the 6 summary judgment matters before it, it was not "manifestly unjust" for Plaintiff to assume that the 7 court would not do exactly as it had stated. This is especially true since Plaintiff apparently had it
8 within his sole control to advise the court, by motion or stipulation, that there was an intervening
9 circumstance that changed the rule's time limits. Failing to do so places the blame exactly where 10 it should be, on Plaintiff's inexcusable negligence.

11 What would be manifestly unjust, at this late-stage of the proceedings, would be to 12 require everyone, including the court, to start over. The case is too far progressed to now move 13 backward.

14 The Rule 59(e) ground is without merit, and the motion on that basis will be DENIED.

15
16 C. Rule 60(b)(1)
17

18 Rule 60(b)(1) grants bankruptcy courts the discretion to relieve a party from a 19 judgment or order for reason of "mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect."

20 Here, the question is whether Plaintiff's failure to notify the court of his reliance on 21 the written agreement to extend his response deadline constituted "excusable neglect." The party
22 moving for reconsideration bears the burden of presenting sufficient facts to demonstrate excusable 23 neglect. In re Rebel Rents, Inc., 326 B.R. 791, 802-803 (C.D. Cal. 2005).

24 It is well settled law that the concept of "excusable neglect" is a "general equitable 25 one, not necessarily reserved for extraordinary circumstances, and takes account of factors such as 26 'prejudice, the length of the delay and impact on judicial proceedings, the reason for the delay, 27 including whether it was within the reasonable control of the movant, and whether the movant acted 28 in good faith.'" TCI Group Life Ins. Plan v. Knoebber, 244 F.3d 691, 696 (9th Cir. 2001) (quoting

1 Pioneer Inv. Servs. Co. v. Brunswick Assocs. Ltd. P'ship, 507 U.S. 380, 395, 113 S.Ct. 1489, 123
2 L.Ed.2d 74 (1993). These factors are non-exclusive, and the trial court can take "account of all 3 relevant circumstances surrounding the party's omission" in making an equitable determination.
4 Pioneer Investment, 507 U.S. at 395. The Pioneer Investment "excusable neglect" standard applies
5 to Rule 60(b)(1). Briones v. Riviera Hotel & Casino, 116 F.3d 379, 381 (9th Cir.1997); cf. Bateman
6 v. United States Postal Service, 231 F.3d 1220 (9th Cir.2000) (applying Pioneer Investment standard 7 to a Rule 60(b)(1) motion where judgment was entered for missing a filing deadline).

8 Plaintiff maintains that TSA would not be prejudiced by what it considers a short 9 delay in proceedings. Bateman, 231 F.3d at 1224-25.

10 TSA states that it would be prejudiced, not only by reinstated claims, but by now 11 having to re-litigate the summary judgment motion.

12 Plaintiff filed his motion to extend time to respond within a day of, or on the same day
13 as entry of the judgments. In Bateman, the Ninth Circuit found excusable neglect where plaintiff's 14 counsel failed to file a response to defendant's motion for summary judgment because he had been 15 out of the country, and he then filed a Rule 60(b)(1) motion more than a month after the court had 16 denied his original request to rescind the judgment. Id., 231 F.3d at 1223. The Ninth Circuit 17 determined that the relevant length of delay and potential impact on the judicial proceedings was 18 "minimal." Id. at 1225. Unlike Bateman, Plaintiff obtained an extension agreement and promptly 19 informed the court of the written agreement.

20 The situation in this case is different. Here, there are multiple defendnats, and trial 21 is to start in about a month and a half. The case has been nursed along since it was filed, and the 22 court had advised the parties that it would be promptly dealing with the summary judgment motions.
23 Even if the court had said nothing, no party had a right to expect that the court would not do its job.
24 As with all bankruptcy courts in the present economy, filings under all chapters are at all-time highs.
25 This court does not have the luxury of working but one case at a time. Litigants must do their part 26 to keep up, or to keep the court advised of agreements between themselves. For the Plaintiff, as to 27 TSA, on these counts, the Rubicon has been crossed.

1 Finally, Plaintiff maintains he acted in good faith in not filing the response because 2 the parties had stipulated to an extension. Other courts have granted relief in similar circumstances.
3 See, e.g., Robb v. Norfolk & Western Ry., 122 F.3d 354, 359-360 (7th Cir. 1997) (finding that 4 failure to inform or seek approval of court after litigants had agreed to extension was excusable
5 neglect under FED. R. CIV. P. 60(b)); Georgopolous v. International Bhd. of Teamsters, AFL-CIO,
6 164 F.R.D. 22, 22-23 (S.D.N.Y. 1995) (excusable neglect shown when defense counsel failed to file 7 timely answer because of good-faith reliance on stipulation between parties for extension that was 8 never submitted to court); see also, Ryan v. Editions Ltd. West, Inc., 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 70853, 9 at *2 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 10, 2009) (granting extension to file opposition when party's counsel
10 mistakenly believed that stipulation extending the hearing date would also extend the response date 11 for filing opposition).

12 TSA contends that Plaintiff's neglect is not excusable where he failed to follow clear 13 procedural rules to obtain an extension. See Speiser, Krause & Madole P.C. v. Ortiz, 271 F.3d 884, 14 886 (9th Cir. 2001) (a mistake of [unambiguous] law does not constitute excusable neglect). But see 15 Kira, Inc. v. Actus Lend Lease, LLC, 2007 WL 1725649 (E.D. Cal. 2007, June 13, 2007), where the 16 bankruptcy court applied Rule 60(b)(6) to grant relief where gross negligence on the part of the 17 lawyer meant the client would be deprived of a resolution on the merits). Moreover, the Speiser 18 dissent pointed out that the Ninth Circuit's decision in Briones "overturn[ed] the per se rule that 19 "ignorance of court rules does not constitute excusable neglect . . ." Speiser, Krause & Madole P.C., 20 271 F.3d at 888 (dissenting op.)

21 For any party who reviews the entire procedural record in this case, it should be 22 evident that Plaintiff's "inadvertence" was not excusable, and that in view of the specific warnings 23 and presence of clearly-defined deadlines under the rules, that it was fatal error not to comply in 24 some reasonable fashion. The record will also note that Plaintiff has been treated fairly and liberally
25 throughout this entire proceeding, but the doors of justice swing both ways. At some point, like 26 now, the doors stop swinging.

27 The Plaintiff's reasons under Rule 60 are rejected. The Rule 60 motion will be 28 DENIED.

1 CONCLUSION

2

3 For the reasons set forth above, the Plaintiff's Rule 59 and 60 motion will be

4 DENIED. A separate order will issue.
